

DATA PROTECTION DECLARATION

General information on the handling of your data

The Vincentz Network GmbH & Co. KG takes the protection of your personal data very seriously. We believe that you should always know what information we collect from you and how we use it, and that you should have significant control over both. It is part of our range of services that personal data is collected, processed and used by you, as it is our aim to offer you user-friendly and customer-related useful services. The following information describes what information we collect from you and how we handle it.

What information is collected?

In principle, you can visit our websites without providing us with your personal data. However, certain services on our websites require registration, where we ask you for information such as your name and e-mail address. This data is called inventory data.

Wherever possible, we give you the opportunity to decide freely whether you wish to communicate your data to us. In some cases, however, data is also collected automatically. Your computer automatically transmits information such as IP address, browser type or access times to us when you use our websites. This data is called usage data.

What are cookies and tracking pixels?

"Cookies" are files that are stored on your computer when you visit our website and that your browser "remembers". Cookies can be blocked by your browser in such a way that, for example, only the page that has set them may read them. When you next visit this site, the cookie is sent to the server by your browser, e.g. to offer you new contributions on your area of interest during your visit.

If you do not want to take advantage of cookies, you can simply delete them and deactivate the function in your browser. However, we will then not be able to offer you some services of our website. You can find out more about this in the help function of your browser. We also use so-called tracking pixels or GIF files to support online advertising and, if necessary, for IVW counting. This enables us to evaluate how many visitors have visited our pages and which advertisements they have accessed. The information collected with cookies or GIF files does not contain your name, address, telephone number or e-mail address.

What does Vincentz Network use your data for?

We use cookies in particular for the distribution of customer-oriented information and advertising and for counting page views. In addition, we may create pseudonymised user profiles for purposes of advertising, market or opinion research or for the demand-oriented design of our services. This allows us to check our services for popularity and to constantly improve them. You can object to this use at any time. In this case we ask you to deactivate the cookies in your browser. For a further and especially personal use we need your consent.

We also use anonymized usage statistics to describe our services to potential partners, advertisers and other interlocutors.

With your consent we use your data for advertising purposes. You can revoke this consent at any time, which we will also point out to you again in the advertising address.

Does Vincentz Network pass on your data to third parties?

Vincentz Network will only share your information with partners or customers of Vincentz Network whose services you have accessed (e.g. the whitepaper of a specific manufacturer) with your consent. When you call up the service, you recognize which company it is and can decide whether you want to download this third-party offer or not. This carefully selected dissemination takes place only for purposes of advertising, market or opinion research.

Can the use and application of personal data or this data protection declaration change?

The handling of personal data is continuously monitored by us against the background of data protection regulations and, if necessary, adjusted. Please take note at regular intervals of our data protection declaration, which reflects the current status of our handling of personal information. Changes will be announced here.

METIS - Online counting of VG Wort

We use "session cookies" from VG Wort, Munich, to measure access to texts in order to measure the likelihood of copying. Session cookies are small pieces of information that a provider stores in the main memory of the visitor's computer. A randomly generated unique identification number, a so-called session ID, is stored in a session cookie. A cookie also contains information about its origin and the storage period. Session cookies cannot store any other data. These measurements are performed by INFOnline GmbH according to the Scalable Central Measurement Method (SZM). They help to determine the likelihood of copying individual texts in order to compensate authors and publishers for legal claims. We do not collect any personal data via cookies. Many of our pages are provided with JavaScript calls, via which we report the access to the Verwertungsgesellschaft Wort (VG Wort). We thus make it possible for our authors to participate in the distributions of VG Wort, which ensure the legal remuneration for the use of works protected by copyright in accordance with Section 53 UrhG. Our offers can also be used without cookies. Most browsers are set to automatically accept cookies. However, you can deactivate the storage of cookies or set your browser so that it informs you as soon as cookies are sent.

Further information on data protection in the measurement procedure can be found on the website of INFOnline GmbH, which operates the measurement procedure, and on the data protection website of VG Wort.

This feature enables the provider to target visitors to the website with advertising by placing personalized, interest-based Facebook ads for visitors to the website when they visit the social network Facebook. To perform the function, the Facebook remarketing tag is implemented on the provider's website.

This tag establishes a direct connection to the Facebook servers when you visit the website. This transfers to the Facebook server which of our Internet pages you have visited. Google Ad Words Conversion Tracking

Our website uses Google Conversion Tracking. If you have reached our website via an ad placed by Google, Google Adwords sets a cookie on your computer. If the user visits certain pages of our website and the cookie has not yet expired, we and Google can see that the user has clicked on the ad and has been redirected to this page. Each Google AdWords customer receives a different cookie. Cookies cannot therefore be traced through the websites of AdWords customers. The information collected using the conversion cookie is used to generate conversion statistics for AdWords customers who have opted for conversion tracking. Customers see the total number of users who clicked on their ad and were redirected to a page with a conversion tracking tag. However, you will not receive any information that personally identifies users.

If you do not wish to participate in tracking, you can refuse the setting of a cookie required for this - for example via browser settings that generally deactivate the automatic setting of cookies or set your browser so that cookies are blocked by the "googleleadservices.com" domain.
